

BUSINESS, PREPARING FOR TOMORROW

When disasters occur, businesses have a lot to deal with therefore getting calls routed elsewhere is essential. Even with the move to online service channels, the company's telephone number is still the primary contact method for customers so having a contingency in place not only allows customers to continue to be serviced but also prevents loss of sales, customers and even bad publicity.

With Number Manager, calls can be quickly and simply diverted to an alternative location at the click of a button, whether you're in the office or out in the field.
